RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

There were 6 feet 4 inches water in the canal last evening by the mark. The river was still falling.

For New Orleans.—The Pacific will leave for New Orleans this evening. She is unquestionably one of the most splendid boats now afloat. Her accommodations and fare are unexceptionable. Capt. Jesse K. Bell, who is known to all our citizens as a high-toned gentleman and excellent officer, has command of the Pacific. Mr. W. P. Halliday, formerly the popular clerk of the Highways, is in the office.

The fine steamer Fanny Bullitt also leaves for New Orleans this evening. She is a capital boat, and a better officer than Capt. Dunham cannot be found on the river. Messrs. Judge, the clerks, are attentive and polite to all who travel with them.

The Southerner.—This elegant steamer arrived from Memphis last night, and we were favored by her attentive clerks with late papers, &c. Mr. McMichael also brought us a full account of the burning of the Col. Crossman, but as we had one in type from the St. Louis Republican, we did not deem it necessary to publish it.

The Southerner will leave for Memphis this evening, where she will connect with the steamer Del-fast for New Orleans. She will take through passengers to New Orleans for $25 and to Vicksburg for $18. The S. is an elegant boat, and Capt. Triplett and Mr. Archer are gentlemen with whom it is a pleasure to travel.

The Superior is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day and Emma Dean is the Carrollton packet.

Negotiations were concluded yesterday between the owners of the steamers Scioto No. 2 and W. A. Eaves to exchange boats. On the return of the Eaves, the Scioto will take her place.

BURGLARY.—The mattress and furnishing store of J. A. Dickerson was entered burglariously between 8 and 9 o'clock last night and ransacked throughout. The burglar tried to open the iron safe with a key, but broke the key off. The entrance was effected through the cellar, the door of which was not locked, and by piling up boxes the burglar succeeded in getting into the house through a trap door. The gentleman who sleeps in the store came in about 9 o'clock, and found that the bird had flown.

The New York Times having intimated that Parton, the author of the Life of Burr that is making such a flurry in the literary world just at present, had "a theory" as to Burr's influence over Jackson, which he would probably bring out in his forthcoming Life of Old Hickory, Parton replies that he has but one theory in writing history, which is, "first, to find out the truth, and, secondly, to tell it." Parton is a rising man.

HIGH WATER IN ALABAMA.—Under the influence of the recent heavy rains the creeks and rivers of Alabama have reached a height not known for many years. The upper Alabama on the 19th was forty-five feet above low-water mark, and much damage has been done to the bottom crops of the Cahawba. The tressel-work of the Cahawba and Columbus have likewise suffered considerably.

Mr. Stanton, in his speech in favor of the Army bill the other day, boasted that ten years from now no one, with the records of all he had said in Congress and elsewhere before him, could say to which party he belonged. There are a good many worse men than Mr. Stanton who could make this boast, if they would.

Three rich farmers of Western Massachusetts have been victimized by a man peddling common manure. They gave their signatures in favor of the manure, and the rascal wrote money orders over them. —
We advise these "three rich farmers of Massachusetts" to spread a suitable compost over their brains. It would be a capital speculation.

FIRE AT EVANSVILLE.—On Friday morning last the extensive starch manufactory of Messrs. Lagro & Sterrett was totally destroyed by fire. The building was entirely new and of brick, the establishment having been in operation but a few weeks. Loss about $10,000 or $12,000; insurance $8,000.

THE EFFECTS OF THE REVOLUTION.—The returns from the New York city postoffice for the quarter ending Dec. 31, show a decrease in the amount of postage prepaid by postage stamps in mails sent from that office of $10,000, and a decrease in the amount received for stamps and stamped envelopes of $16,000 as compared with the quarter immediately preceding.

Hours.—Everything has its advantages, even ladies' hoops. A lady passenger on the Col. Crossman, which was burned in the Mississippi a few nights ago, was saved by the hoops, which kept her afloat until she was rescued. The lady in question, and also a gentleman, who were passengers on the Crossman, came up on the Pacific yesterday.

FLETCHER HARPER, ESQ.—This honored member of the world-renowned firm of Harper & Brothers passed through our city last week en route from New Orleans to New York. Mr. H. visited the tropical border of our Union in quest of health, which, we are happy to hear, he found in very liberal measure.

XXXVTH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

Senate.—Mr. Seward reviewed at length the message, saying he was opposed to the attempt to force slavery on the people of Kansas, and he would agitate it so long as a single hope remained that slavery might be driven from the Territory, which was stolen and robbed of freedom.

Messrs. Clay and Benjamin briefly attacked Mr. Fessenden's position.

Mr. Davis accused him of uttering dissonant sentiments.

Mr. Fessenden did not recognize the authority of Mr. Davis to lecture him, and denied that he had attacked slavery in States where it was established or advanced disunion sentiments; and remarked that he had read an extract from Mr. Davis's speech in which the latter entered President Pierce's Cabinet a disunion man.

Mr. Davis replied that it was false, and that the extract from his speech was perverted, and explained that he had said that Mr. Fessenden's course would have the effect to undermine the constitution.

Mr. Wilson's proposition to send for persons and papers for the purpose of examining into all the facts relative to the adoption of the Lecompton constitution was rejected by a majority of six.

The Kansas message was then referred to the Committee on Territories.

Pending the effort of Mr. Douglas to get up his resolution calling for information of the President in reference to Kansas affairs, adjourned.

House.—Mr. Harris, of Illinois, moved to reconsider the vote and lay that motion on the table, which was carried by 115 against 111.

Mr. Hughes's resolution, merely to refer the Kansas message to a select committee of thirteen, as amended by the adoption of Mr. Harris's substitute given above, was agreed to by 115 against 111.

Mr. Keitt rose to a personal explanation, saying that the House would remember that its proceedings during the session of Friday were broken in an unpleasant manner. It was due that he should assume to himself all the responsibility for the violation of its order, dignity, and decorum. He was the aggressor and whatever of responsibility properly attached to that act belonged to him alone. It was also due to justice that he should make whatever reparation it was in his power to make to the dignity and decorum of the House thus violated. He did this in expression of his profound regret at the occurrence. Personal collisions are always unpleasant and very seldom justifiable—never in a legislative body. He felt the full force of the responsibility which he assumed in saying that he was the aggressor, and that the entire responsibility properly belonged to him. In this connection he had but one other remark to make, and that was whether any blow was directed at him or not was more than he could say; at least he was unconscious of having received it. With this explanation he parted with the subject.

Mr. Grow said he had been taught in childhood that all rights among men are disengaged to human nature and to a Christian community, and this is especially the case when they occur among law-makers in the midst of deliberations. Ripper years and the force of education satisfied him that this lesson was a good and true one. Yet the right of self-defense he recognized as one of the inalienable rights of man, to be exercised on all occasions and under all circumstances whenever necessary for the protection of life or property. He at the last sitting the House found himself unexpectedly entangled in the first personal conflict. For this he tendered to the House most cheerfully whatever apology was due for this violation of its order and decorum, and was no more regretted more than himself the occasion for the violation of its order.

The House adjourned.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.

The anti-Lecompton Democrats held a meeting at National Hall this evening. Much crowded. Jno. W. Forney presided. Resolutions were adopted, the most important of which are as follows:

Resolved, That the Democratic party of Pennsylvania in the late presidential contest pledged its faith to the people of the State and country that the citizens of Kansas and all other Territories of the Union should decide for themselves the character of their domestic institution, and as this sacred pledge had the written sanction and ardent approbation of Mr. Buchanan, and was repeatedly reiterated in our State and city by Secretaries Cobb and Floyd, Postmaster General Brown and others during that remarkable campaign; it would be both unmanly and disgraceful in us as Democrats to violate a promise so sacredly given, on the indefensible ground of expediency alone.

Resolved, That we cling with unabated zeal to the confidence we have so long reposed in James Buchanan, President of the United States, and that we approve and support every part of his policy thus far developed, excepting that in reference to Kansas, from which we do respectfully but fixedly dissent.

Resolved, That the Democratic party of this great city has always been distinguished for its devotion to the rights of States, including those of the South, and that in contending for the great principle embodied in the Kansas-Nebraska act, and for the fulfillment of our pledge in 1856, we claim to be supporting the true interests of the South, and as taking the only course that is consistent with our obligations as members of the national Democratic party.

Mr. Forney made a brilliant speech on taking the chair.

Mr. Stanton delivered a long and eloquent speech.

Walker was not present, being unable to reach the city in time.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.

Increase of loans, $1,423,000; increase of circulation, $504,000; decrease of specie, $620,000.

AFFAIRS AT FRANKFORT.

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.]
The Bank Question—Resignation of Mr. Wellbourne.
Evening sessions of the Senate—Mr. Read's Card.
The Bill to prevent the Marriage of Cousins—Col. Rand and his Claim—Hon. Thos. F. Marshall's Lectures—Religious Matters—The Governor's Leece, &c., &c.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 8, 1858.

I scarcely know how to write you to-day, as I have scarcely a particle of news to communicate. The Senate was engaged all morning in the consideration of bills strictly of local character, and which would prove of no interest whatever to the general reader, and the house was occupied almost exclusively in the discussion of the bank question. And, by the way, if we are to judge from the start made this morning, they will be occupied for several days in the discussion of the same interesting topic, as about the same character and the same number of amendments are proposed as were proposed in the Senate, and as there is a much larger quantity of buncombe and gas to be expended than the Senate had on hand. Judging from the length of time already consumed, we may well question whether there is time, in the remaining eight days, for a full discussion. The number of conductors for the gas doesn't facilitate the thing at all, as each one is fully charged and only one can operate at a time.

Mr. W. J. N. Wellbourne, the Assistant Clerk of the House, about whom the Locofocos have raised such a fuss generally, to-day received intelligence of the sickness of his family, which information caused him this morning to tender his resignation, in order that he might hurry home. His resignation was accepted, and the House by a unanimous vote tendered their thanks for the faithful, impartial, and able manner in which he had discharged his official duties; thereby giving a just rebuke to the Locofoco scribblers who had proclaimed his incompetency, and to the Locofoco press which had endorsed the proclamation and heralded it through the land. I am sure Mr. W. bears with him the best wishes of all the members with whom he has so intimately associated for the past two months.

The House this afternoon passed the Senate bill amending chapter 12 of the Revised Statutes, allowing the keeping of billiard tables by private families, and which are not used for pecuniary profit, either directly or indirectly, without the payment of any license. Also a Senate bill giving authority to Justices of the Peace to take depositions in certain cases, by the consent of the parties or their attorneys in writing. I gave you the provisions of the bill in full a few days ago, and it is needless to repeat them. A bill providing that judges of elections shall be chosen, one in each precinct, from each political party, and that the counties of the counties of Floyd and Johnson be exempted, that gentleman stating that there were not enough Americans in his God-forsaken county to fill the positions, was up for consideration. Mr. Jackson suggested that in all probability there would be enough by the next election, and if, not, they could put in some man who had once been a Whig, which would enable the gentleman from Floyd (Mr. Burns) to come in. Mr. Burns finally offered an amendment to the effect, provided there should be a sufficiency of members of the separate parties in each district. The bill and amendment then passed.

The Senate seems to be waking up to the importance of more active legislation as the time of adjournment approaches. They have concluded to hold afternoon sessions commencing to-day, and in consequence of which determination they took a recess at 1 o'clock to meet again at 3 this afternoon. As they did but little this morning of any importance, the probability is they design letting themselves in freely this afternoon, and if anything of interest transpires I will write you again to-night.

The Commonwealth of this morning contains the case of W. B. Read, the Senator from Larue, attempting to explain his bold declaration made on the floor of the Senate the other day, to the effect that there was more ignorance among the ministers of the Gospel than among all the other professions. His explanation is if anything worse than the offense, for he not only lets down pretty heavy on the servants of God, but he attempts to mitigate the affair by pointing out a portion of his anathemas upon the heads of that useful class of people who teach the "young idea how to shoot," as well as upon the school commissioners throughout the length and breadth of the State. Varily the card of Mr. Read does not read well, and it would be well for Read if it were not generally read.

Those persons who are nearly related by the ties of consanguinity, and who have been contemplating vinculo matrimonii, can quiet their fears, if the action of the House a week or two ago, excited any, as the Senate in its wisdom to-day concluded that cousins were not to be cozened out of their rights, provided Dad and Mam gave their consent, or in the event of a failure to procure such consent, if any Gretna Green was sufficiently convenient to be reached by the "iron horse," that the disapprobation of the disapprobation. Still your correspondent fondly hopes that no one will be compelled to disobey the mandates of any paterfamilias, and foolishly donate to some old water-dog a "silver pound to row him o'er the ferry," for he feels the full force of the poet's touching line, "How sharper than a serpent's fangs it is to have a toothless child, and would not have the feelings of any one lacerated.

Mr. William S. Rand, our late commissioner to the world's fair, held in New York in 1853, and who represented the interest of our State there at that time at an expense to himself, as he alleges, of eighteen months' time and some five thousand dollars in cool cash, in promoting the interest and maintaining the name and fame of the Commonwealth before the assembled nations of the world, is out in a card in the morning papers slightly bearing down upon the Legislature for its refusal to indemnify him for his time and funds expended, as other States have done, but expressing unbounded confidence in the sense of justice possessed by the citizens of his native Kentucky, and an abiding belief that he is yet to get his dues. Possibly he may; but when Democrats pay as much for the actual stipulation in the bond, it will cease to be Democratic; and when it agrees to receive any less than the bond calls for, Shylocks will cease to exist.

Hon. Thomas F. Marshall has just concluded a series of lectures upon history, but without getting through with the subject, his engagements calling him elsewhere. His lectures were largely attended by the most refined portion of the Frankfort population, and great anxiety is felt that he should forego his other engagements and complete his series here. Whether he will do so or not I am unable to say. The talented and accomplished Bishop Smith, of the Diocese of Kentucky, was with us yesterday, and after an eloquent sermon delivered to an immense audience of ladies and gentlemen, conferred the ordinance of confirmation upon about fifty persons of various ages and sexes, all new converts to the Church and the succession. Who ever dreamed that so much good could come out of such a Nazareth as Frankfort.

The Governor holds his last levee of the season this evening, and I suppose the Executive Mansion will be overflowing with the beauty and chivalry of the land, all anxious to pay their parting respects to his Excellency and his accomplished family, who have furnished them with so many delightful entertainments during the winter, and by whom they have been so hospitably, so agreeably, and so elegantly entertained.

EXPLOSION OF THE COL. CROSSMAN.

Full Particulars of the Explosion, Burning, and Total Loss of the Steamer Col. Crossman—Twenty Lives Lost—$100,000 worth of Property Destroyed.

The "Col. Crossman," late in the Missouri river trade, was, at the time of the lamentable occurrence, making her first trip from New Orleans to St. Louis. She left the former port on the evening of Thursday, the 20th of January, and had passed on the evening of the 4th inst., New Madrid, which she reached about seven o'clock. Half-past seven found her about a mile above that point, and then it was that the accident happened. She burst her small or nigger boiler.

The violence of the explosion was such as to carry away the fore part of the cabin, instantly killing Alexander Martin of this city, who was officiating as the firm of Wm. Cheever, and Co., Capt. Converse of this city, Kirk Menzies of Louisiana, and injuring some others, whose names are not mentioned in this connection—some being blown overboard.

No sooner had this direful mishap occurred than it was discovered that the boat had caught fire. The alarm became general, the excitement became intense, and the confusion fearful.

Capt. Cheever used his utmost endeavors to keep the passengers from precipitating themselves into the river and with difficulty it would seem that amidst this horrible scene, with the boat all in flames, the water rolling by, he managed to keep from this almost sure death, such as coolness could command in the hour of peril. He then ordered the yawl to be lowered, which being done, the firemen and deck hands took possession of her, filling her to her utmost capacity. No entreaty—no command—no threat of the commanding officers, the men and the mate—could induce them to venture their lives by swimming, or by other means, that they might save unharmed the passengers, who by this time were becoming desperate, as they seemed to find certain death by fire or flood staring them in the face.

Discovering the impossibility of securing the safe conduct of his living charges by means of the yawl, already on the water, to the shore, the captain ordered the other boat. Into this the captain, Mr. Bixby, the pilot, Mr. Lowe, the mate, and Mr. Scott, the steward, handed so many of the passengers as possible. These were carried off to the wharf boat at New Madrid.

The remainder, including the officers of the boat, whom we have mentioned just above, sought safety by plunging into the river. Mr. Hill, of the steamer Herald, who was a passenger, was among them. He was picked up by a skiff sent from shore to the rescue, which did noble service by saving many of the floating beings that studded the surface of the water.

Capt. Cheever was at his post until all had left the boat. Then, and then only, did he cast himself into the river and swim, and in so doing he was the last to be rescued. He was picked up by another skiff, so far exhausted that in a few minutes life would have been extinct. Carried to New Madrid efforts were successfully made for his resuscitation.

Some of the unfortunate passengers were in the water, the temperature being fifteen degrees below freezing point, for fully half an hour. They lost all they had on board, not having time to save the smallest remnant of their possessions.

The explosion took place while the boat was under way—the nigger boiler having been called into requisition to generate steam to aid in propelling the boat, as we understand—there being an attachment between the nigger and the other boilers. It seems that the shock of the explosion was not very great but caused some inquiry in the ladies' cabin as to what had happened.

When the explosion occurred, the boat was stopped in her progress. Fire had been blown into the wood and other inflammable matter on the main deck, and about five minutes afterwards there was a cry of "fire." Then the greatest excitement and alarm commenced. There was a general rush for life-preservers, and some were so wild with terror as to jump overboard without them.

The boat floated down with the current, a burning mass, lighting up the scene of terror and death. She floated about two miles below New Madrid, where the hull lodged on a bar and burned to the water's edge. Our informant states that, as nearly he could tell, there were about forty cabin passengers, and about twenty-five on deck. The books and papers of the boat were all lost. The clerk was among the killed, and the exact number of passengers could not be ascertained.

There are parties who in this sad calamity cannot be praised too highly for their noble devotion. Among them we may appropriately mention the Captain who ran such extreme risk in the performance of his arduous duty, and the first mate and steward, who lost their lives in the most honorable of all services.

To the citizens of New Madrid the city of St. Louis will return sincere thanks—thanks inexpressible, for their exertions to save, and their efforts to comfort.

The lost, as far as known, are as follows: Ephraim L. Cheever, Capt. Converse, Mrs. Dan'l G. Taylor, Sallie Taylor (youngest child of Mrs. Taylor), Jennie Wall (daughter of N. Wall & W. Wall), Mr. Lowe, first mate, Wilson Farris, pilot, Mr. Scott, steward, and Richard Johnson, first clerk, all of St. Louis; Mr. Durkin, Chicago; J. B. Kennedy, Pittsburg; Mrs. Green, residence unknown; with seven or eight deck passengers; also one or two of the cabin crew, names unknown, and one fireman.

The safe having been lost, in which the books of the boats were deposited, no full list of the passengers could be obtained. Above are taken from the recollection of the survivors, and is thought to be pretty near correct.

The cabin crew and cooks were saved, with one or two exceptions, as was also the case with the deck hands and firemen.

Shocking Affair—Hyena in the Woods.—A distressing tragedy occurred this week in the Western part of this State. Gannung's Menagerie is wintering two miles west of Pandling, Pandling county. Among the other animals was a hyena, said to be the largest in the United States. The animal was very ferocious, and had twice bitten his keeper. Early Wednesday morning last the hyena escaped. Search was instantly made, and later in the morning he was discovered in the grave yard, having dug up and partly devoured two or three dead bodies. Several of the citizens rushed in to take it, when it turned on its assailants, striking down a German day laborer named Jacob Poffenburg, and crushed the head of the unfortunate man in his jaws, killing him instantly. The brute then made its escape, after tearing the flesh from the right arm and the chest of a lad, who is not expected to recover. The animal succeeded in making good his escape. The citizens are much excited. Parties are scouring the woods, and the menagerie men have been notified by some of the citizens to remove the establishment at once.—Cleveland Herald.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

I learn that Mr. Harris, of Illinois, designs modifying his resolution to refer the President's special message on Kansas affairs to a special committee, so that the investigation shall be confined to the fraudulent character of the returns of members of the Lecompton convention, and of the votes cast for the constitution as it has been sent here by Calhoun; also to the frauds, palpable and indisputable, of the election returns for State officers. There is no change of the issue as it was made up on the day the message was received.

The manner and the ground upon which Calhoun returned a pro-slavery Legislature and other State officers, still remains involved in more or less of mystery. The facts have not come out, yet there is more than the appearance of jugglery, and every consideration of justice demands that there should be a searching investigation into the subject.

Whatever result may grow out of the pending controversy, it is

Dear Sir: I have tried your Pectoral in a well-marked was perfectly astonished at the immediate relief and dimi-

A CARD.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public to a machine chronometer placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best

London and French chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of

Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodham,

Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers.

In many fine watches that are broken parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally.

EVENING BULLETIN.

AFFAIRS IN WASHINGTON.

(Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.)
The Kansas Question—Contested Elections—Humphrey Marshall—A Good Hit—The Territorial Questions, etc.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, 1858.

It seems to be reduced to a certainty that the Democratic majority in the Senate intend to link the Kansas with the Minnesota question—a move with a free State—and thus attempt to pass the "twin-sister bill." This fact was avowed by Senator Jones, of Iowa, who said that he would not obey the anti-Leocompton instructions of the Legislature of that State; nor would he resign. He wanted Kansas and Minnesota to come into the Union, hand in hand, together.

Whatever may be the proper policy in this branch of politics, it is a fact that Congress at the last session passed an act authorizing Minnesota to form a constitution and State government preparatory to her admission into the Union, but at that time no attempt was made to deal in like manner with Kansas. Minnesota has acted in good faith, and has her Senators and Representatives ready to take their seats. To keep her out of the Union, or to make her admission contingent on the acceptance by Congress of the Leocompton Constitution, would be a manifest act of injustice to the new State of Minnesota.

If hereafter no one State can come into the Union along—although its erection be specifically authorized—what is to become of Oregon. Her constitution for a State Government is in the hands of the Committee on Territories of the House. She, too, during the last Congress, was authorized to arrange the machinery for a State Government. Under the recently declared policy, she, too, must wait until some (at present unheard of) slave State shall be formed to take her by the hand and walk with her into the family of republics.

Every such question ought to stand on its own merits; so said Mr. Crittenden and other patriotic and unselfish statesmen.

Another thing, the Indiana contested election case has been postponed until after the Kansas question shall have been settled. By this means, the votes of Senators Bright and Fitch will be retained for the admission of Kansas under the Leocompton constitution; and by delaying to act on the Minnesota State admission bill, two Senators against the Leocompton constitution will be kept out of the chamber.

Turning from the Senate, look at the House. The Minnesota Representatives, also opposed to that instrument, are held off, at least until the Kansas question shall have been decided. And, besides, the signs are unmistakable that Lewis D. Campbell, of Ohio, whose seat is contested by Col. Vallandigham, is to be ousted; and thus the Leocompton vote of the latter is to be substituted for the anti-Leocompton vote of the former. Don't you see the progress of the political Administration movement—to say nothing as to the right or wrong of the matter?

During the debate on a resolution reported by the Committee of Elections against allowing Mr. Campbell further time to take supplementary testimony, Mr. Stephens, of Georgia, and others in the majority loudly and confidently declared that the design of Mr. Campbell was to delay action, and urged that the House should not longer delay to settle the matter. There was a necessity for it. Col. Marshall advocated an extension of time for good and sufficient reasons, and took occasion to put in a heavy link to this effect: That there could be no urgent cause for action immediately in this case, for the Senate, Democratic as it is, had delayed for two years to act upon the Indiana contested election case! To be consistent, the other wing of the party should not delay to settle that important question. But in the Senate two votes were to be retained for Leocompton; in the House a Leocompton vote is sought to be added by the exclusion of an opponent.

Much anxiety is expressed to know how Governor Wise, of Virginia, is going. Be perfectly assured he is now against the Leocompton movement, but may not at present publish the letter which it is said he has prepared to define his position. As "the Leocompton" is made a party test, any man who opposes it reads himself out of the party. This rule has been explicitly laid down. So "stand from under!"

THE NICARAGUA TREATY.—We have our private advices from Nicaragua. They satisfy us of the entire untruthfulness of the stories written from this city alleging the probability of the rejection by that government of the Ibisari treaty. The cause of the delay in its ratification is the simple fact that the Legislature of Nicaragua not being in session it cannot be immediately ratified. The fact that the Legislature is very soon to meet is the only reason why President Martinez does not call a special session to that end. The approval of the treaty is unanimous throughout every branch of the Nicaraguan government.—Washington Star.
